Area Traffic Toll Drops In '54

26 Dead, 488 Hurt In Patrol District

1954 was safer than its predecessor year on highways near Salem, statistics at the state highway barracks here show.

According to Cpl. Edward Mallory, patrolman at the Salem barracks investigated a total of 823 traffic mishaps in which 26 persons were killed and 488 injured. In 1953, 893 accidents were investigated accounting for 31 deaths and 568 injuries.

Property damage last year amounted to $542,352 compared to $747,000 in 1953.

A comparison of the number of arrests for the two years reflects a better brand of driving during the year. In 1954 patrolmen made a total of 2,957 arrests as compared to 3,563 the previous year. Of 1954's arrests, 613 resulted from traffic collisions while 1,863 were for traffic violations. The remaining 481 were attributed to non-moving violations such as overload, no driver's license, etc. Patrolmen also issued 5,333 warnings during 1954.

According to Mallory, the worst stretches of highway in the area from the standpoints of accidents in 1954 were Route 14 just east of Salem and Route 30 south of Lisbon. Mallory also pointed out that weekends were the worst time to travel. During the year, approximately 70 per cent of the accidents occurred on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

October and January were the worst months for accidents, he said. During January four persons were killed and 51 injured in the area's 85 collisions while in October seven fatalities and 61 injuries were reported in the 82 mishaps investigated by local patrolmen.

1954 compares favorably with 1952, one of the worst years on record, when 36 died and 558 were injured in the districts 1,026 mishaps. Property damage that year amounted to $796,080.

A breakdown by months of accidents, deaths and injuries during 1954 shows:

February, 51-0-31; March, 73-2-38; April, 44-2-22; May, 69-2-29; June, 79-1-43; July, 62-4-49; August, 70-2-37; September, 76-2-47; November, 65-0-34 and December, 67-0-46.

DOVER, Ohio (AP)—Police at nearby New Philadelphia arrested four youths yesterday just minutes after a $28 robbery at a Dover gasoline station. Bound over to the Tuscarawas County Grand Jury were Gene McCloud, 24, of Canton and these three from Magnolia: Frank Keith 26, Eugene Q. Burson, 25, and Frank Minster 20. Sheriff Lists Busy Year During '54

Sheriff Howard Clark said $80,368 was collected by his department last year as a result of court orders.

A total of $30,221 was collected in 1949, $50,047 in 1950, $16,143 in 1951, $39,155 in 1952 and $51,503 in 1953.

Clark and his deputies investigated 83 cases. These included 44 breaking and enterings, 20 larcenies, two suicides, nine robberies, three malicious destruction of property, one attempted suicide, two other deaths, and two shootings. There were no homicides in 1954.

The sheriff's radio was only slightly less busy than in 1953 with 26,144 transmissions and receptions over the network. The previous year there were 27,247.

In addition, 4,039 calls were logged and 355 personal inquiries were made at the office.

Clark said 651 prisoners were booked during 1954. The annual board bill was $16,140.70.

In the period 264 warrants were served, 5,410 papers investigated, and 144 general complaints investigated. A record number of fox feet were received, the sheriff reported. He said bounties were paid on 533 foxes killed.

Clark said cash receipts handled by his department represent executions, judgments, order of sale, subpoenas warrants, and other orders handed down in the three courts.

Girl, 14, Injured When Hit By Car

A 14-year-old RD. 4, Lisbon, girl became Salem's first traffic injury victim of the year yesterday.

Police said the girl, Linda Lou Whinery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Whinery, was struck by a car operated by Charles Ronald Smith, 33, of Steubenville at 8 p.m. on S. Lincoln Ave.

Taken to the Central Clinic with two cracked ribs and body abrasions, she is reported to be in fair condition.

According to police, the girl ran from behind a parked vehicle into the path of Smith's auto. The impact rolled the girl for eight feet, police said.

Extension Service To Get New Office

LISBON — The first new home in the last quarter century for the Columbiana County Agricultural Extension Service, cramped for space because of an expanding program, is in sight.

Seven second story rooms over the Isaly Dairy Store on S. Market St. will be rented for new farm offices, according to County Commissioner W. A. Hunston.

Ralph Schneider of North Georgetown presented the county Extension Advisory Committee's recommendation to commissioners asking the relocation of offices.

The 2,000 square feet of office space is owned by Frank Hixcox of 315 W. Washington St. who is asking $75 a month rental.

W. C. Roberts, associate county agent, said the new quarters would give the extension service three times the area available at present in the County House basement office.

The change will be made within the next 60 days.

Dr. Sheppard Guarded After Mother's Death

Corrigan Drops Try For New Trial, Seeks Appellate Hearing

CLEVELAND (AP)—Grief and hope were companions to Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard today in his county jail cell—grief over his mother's suicide and hope he would win freedom on bail and an appeal from his life sentence for murder.

The cell was not the same one where the handsome, 31-year-old osteopath has spent all but four weeks since July 4 when his pregnant wife, Marilyn, was clubbed to death in her bed. A jury convicted Sheppard of the crime Dec. 21.

Prisoners are put in the observation cell when it is feared they may commit violence to themselves.

After he got the news that his white-haired mother had shot herself to death, Sheppard was moved, in spite of his protests, to the jail's observation cell where he will be under constant watch.

Members of his family who told Sheppard of his mother's death yesterday afternoon said he had "broken down completely," but he regained his composure before transferring to the new cell.

"Mother was very proud," said Sheppard's oldest brother, Richard, one of those who visited the jail. "She had complete faith in Sam's innocence, but all of this was just too much for her."

Her husband of 39 years, Dr. Richard A. Sheppard, is hospitalized with pleurisy. In a carefully penned two-sentence suicide note she wrote: "I can't manage without dad. Thanks for everything."

Although Sheppard telephoned his 64-year-old mother from the jail, he did not want her to see him in those surroundings and he did not visit him or attend the trial. Much of the time she was ill with a heart ailment. She suffered a stroke two months ago.

She last saw her youngest son when he was released on bail Aug. 16, meeting him with open arms on her front porch. A grand jury indictment returned him to jail after 30 hours freedom.

Sheppard attended funeral M. Sweeney for permission to attend private funeral services which will be held for 64-year-old Mrs. Ethel Sheppard Monday. "He was told a court order must be obtained to allow him to go under guard. Just about the time yesterday

While the engineer's estimate was based on an assessment of $3.20 per foot frontage, the actual cost to property owners in the area is expected to be lower. Utilities Superintendent Aubrey Hayes said following a meeting with a committee representing residents of the affected district.

Army Says Adams Okayed Discharge For Major Peress

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army said last night final approval of an honorable discharge for Maj. Irving Peress—an action opposed by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis)—came from Army Counselor John G. Adams and Lt. Gen. Walter L. Weible, a deputy chief of staff.

The Army announcement sparked preparations by McCarthy for a new probe of the case. Adams and Weible made the final decision to discharge Peress, the Army said, because a review indicated "there existed no basis for reconsideration of the case" and that the discharge was the best and quickest way to remove him in the absence of evidence he had engaged in subversion on active duty.

In a 10,000 word chronology of the case, the Army noted, however, that the 1st Army intelligence division had reported nine months earlier it had "sufficient evidence of disloyal and subversive tendencies to warrant removal of Peress from the service."

The Army also reported Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, a frequent target of McCarthy during the senator's initial study of the case, had several times urged Peress be discharged because his retention was "clearly not consistent with the interest of national security."

Zwicker was commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was stationed.

McCarthy, swinging quickly back into action, called a Monday meeting of the Senate Investigations subcommittee and said he would demand new hearings, possibly Tuesday, with subpoenas for some Army officials concerned. McCarthy said he is still acting as chairman of the committee until it is reorganized under Democratic control.

Peress is the New York dentist whom McCarthy has called a "Fifth Amendment Communist" and who was discharged after he had refused to answer questions about Communist affiliations in an appearance before McCarthy's subcommittee.

Adams and Weible were among 62 persons named in the Army chronology as having had a part at one time or another in the promotion and discharge of Peress. Adams was the only civilian. Others ranged from warrant officers who signed papers to a four-star general, Charles L. Bolte, vice chief of staff, who approved an officers' board finding that Peress should be discharged.

Arrested by Salem and Columbiana police in Columbiana late Friday, Harold Authenreith of the Park House Hotel in Columbiana will be charged with petit larceny sometime today. In a statement signed yesterday, Authenreith admitted stealing merchandise from seven downtown Salem stores in the past two weeks.

Pair Held For Years In Soviet Prison Camps

No Word On Third Missing American; Two Freed In Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—Two Americans held for years in Soviet captivity were released in Berlin today.

The men are Pvt. William T. Marchuk, 38, of Brackenridge, Pa., and John H. Noble, 31, of Detroit. Marchuk has been missing since February, 1949, when he crossed the frontier in Germany with a buddy, Pvt. William Verdine, of Starks, La.

Noble was arrested, with his father, in Dresden when the Russians stormed into the collapsing Third Reich. The elder Noble, a camera manufacturer, had come to Germany in 1938 and was trapped by the war. He was released in 1925 after seven years in Soviet zone jails.

Liberated German and Austrian prisoners reported seeing all three men in Russian work camps. The Soviet Foreign Office, in agreeing to free Marchuk and Noble, told the U.S. embassy in Moscow however that it had no knowledge of Verdine.

Russia disclosed it planned to free the two Americans in a note to the United States Dec. 31. The United States had demanded the freedom of the men in eight official queries, but until the Russian note came, it had received no information on their whereabouts. "Austrian prisoners recently released by the Soviets reported Verdine was suffering from tuberculosis. They said he was too ill to be moved."

The Russian note repeated a request for return of 11 Russian children now in the West.

It appeared certain the United States would reject Russia's request for the children "on humanitarian grounds." Eight of the children are living in foster homes in West Germany. The remaining three are in the New York City area.

Chinese Reds Shell Nationalist Island

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Communist guns today resumed shelling of Nationalist-held Quemoy and Little Quemoy islands following yesterday's artillery duel described as the heaviest action since the new year.

The Defense Ministry reported the Reds fired 60 shells from Amoy and Tatung islands, the later a small island between Quemoy and the Mainland.

The ministry said Communist cannon on Amoy, 120 miles across the strait from Formosa, fired 88 shells at Quemoy yesterday and eight at Tsuyu, a tiny, Nationalist island nearby.

Nationalist guns on Quemoy countered the shelling "effectively," the ministry reported. It said one old woman on Quemoy was wounded fatally, a young woman was hurt seriously and a school house was demolished.

Last night the Reds on Tachen Island fired 26 shells at Yikiang-shan Island, but caused neither damage nor casualties, the ministry added. Those islands are near the Tachens.

Bible Words for Today

JOHN 3:16—"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life." (RSV)

I hesitate to suggest my favorite Bible verse. It is a bit as if some one asked me to name my favorite son or daughter. There are four of them and each has an equal place in my affections. Bible verses are a bit like that to me.

Perhaps John 3:16 stands at the top of the list. No other verse seems to embody so much of the evangel. This verse, sometimes called, "The Gospel in a Nutshell" certainly is at the heart of the Gospel message. God's infinite love, His supreme gift to man, His inclusive invitation to eternal life, and His promise of our redemption through Christ, are the basic foundations on which our salvation rests.

It is for these and other reasons that I cherish John 3:16, as containing a gold nugget of spiritual truth of par excellence value.

PROOF of its healing power

The way to health and harmony among men is earnestly and unselfishly sought by both Science and Religion.

Many divergent methods confront mankind. But the claims of all ultimately submit to one test—the test of proof.

The final chapter in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, consists of 100 pages of unsolicited testimonies from persons healed by reading this book alone.

All testimonies have been carefully authenticated. All manner of disease and discord has been cast out permanently and promptly. This is the proof that Christian Science provides of its healing power.

Science and Health may be read or obtained at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon is also for you use.

Reading Room Open Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 1:30 to 4:00 P. M. 217 NORTH LINCOLN

Confident Living

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

How To Get Results From Prayers

About ten years ago, a man telephoned from out of town saying he was a regular reader of this column. He explained that he was suffering from nervous tension and wanted to come to New York to consult me about this. At that time

Dr. Peale

I was able to hold such personal interviews; so we set a date for a consultation. When he arrived at the appointed time, I was talking with someone else. However, I could see him through the glass doors of my office, pacing up and down nervously, taking his watch out of his vest pocket, putting it back, running his hands through his hair, clapping his hands and unclasping his hands. Indeed, he seemed to be in a considerable dither.

Finally my previous interview ended and I asked him into my office. He sat down and began telling me about his tension, tapping his fingers on the desk as he spoke. "Well," he said to me, "let's start on my problem. I'm so nervous."

"ALL RIGHT," I TOLD HIM, "we'll start with your fingers."

"With my fingers!" he exclaimed.

"Yes," I replied, "with your fingers."

"I came here for some solid ideas," he said in a disappointed manner, "and you talk to me about fingers!"

"But your fingers are related to your ideas," I explained. "The reason you are nervously tapping your fingers is because there is a nervous tapping in your thoughts. You wouldn't tap your fingers in this way unless your mind was sending excitable messages down to your fingers. Put your hand flat and relaxed on the desk," I instructed him. "Let your fingers go limp and rest. As you practice relaxing your hand, your mind will tend to accept a more peaceful state. Now, don't you feel more peaceful?" I asked after a moment or two.

"I believe that I do," he said. And he began to talk more slowly and less excitedly.

"You're getting quieter," I told him. "Now uncross your legs. Slump in your chair. Stretch your feet out. Let your head rest on the back of the chair."

"Is this a minister's office or a doctor's?" he asked with a grin, but he did as suggested.

"Simply an office where the healing peace of Jesus Christ is administered," I answered.

He was beset by fears and insecurities which over a long period had resulted in a state of tension. He was plagued with fears, that his wife or children would get sick, that his house would burn down, that his business would fail.

I ENCOURAGED HIM to think constructively and to realize that none of these things had happened. I suggested a verse from a famous hymn, "So long thy power hath kept me — Sure it still leads me on. I assured him that past care by God implied future protection and suggested that he exercise ordinary concern and then leave everything to God. "Your personality is frozen by this nervousness and fear. Your mind needs to be filled with serenity if you are to be healed. Of course you pray?"

"I pray every night before I go to bed, he answered, "but still I am in this nervous state."

"I am going to give you a prescription, I said. "I want you to start today and pray twenty-five times a day."

"Why, I wouldn't have time to do anything else!" he protested.

"Just fragmentary prayers is what I mean, fractions of moments — quick mental turnings to God."

He even kept a score sheet of his prayers and later when he brought it in to show it to me he told me: "It was hard at first, but gradually I actually stepped it up until one day I consciously prayed fifty times. And the more I prayed in this manner, he said, 'the more I had a sense of the presence of God, the quieter I grew and the more confident I became."

"The Bible is absolutely right; the secret is to pray without ceasing," he concluded.

This is a great secret. I guarantee you will have a sense of real happiness and dynamic power you have never before experienced as you learn to get similar results from your prayers.

For Those Who Follow

Imagine picking your way along a frozen wilderness trail.

You're bitterly cold, but see no sign of human habitation, mile after terrifying mile.

Then, thanks to someone who's already gone this way, you come upon a crude shack. Even with shelter you could still freeze to death, but you find wood already gathered for a fire.

Later, before venturing on, you too pile high more wood for someone yet to come.

No matter who you are—or where—your life marks a trail that someone is following. Along that way is the Church—a haven from storms of the world.

Yet the building alone is not enough. It must have people to work in it and to gather fuel for the fires of faith.

Look ahead as your fathers did before you. Begin today to support and strengthen the Church for those yet to come.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Procedure For Cyprus

When the British government announced last July it would give inhabitants of Cyprus more to say about their own affairs, the lid was about to be blown off the kettle of the island's uneasy status as a British crown colony. Britain had waited too long.

It blew off with a bang in August when the government of Greece applied to the United Nations for a plebiscite to decide whether Cyprus would become part of Greece or continue under British rule. Britain promptly pointed out that the U.N. had no jurisdiction in the matter because Cyprus belonged wholly within the United Kingdom.

The lid was a mile high.

The United States does not want to get involved in an issue between Britain and Greece, two of its respected allies.

Its citizens do not want to get involved in an argument that will be ticklish to carry on in the presence of Americans of Greek origin.

Yet from the instant the lid blew off it was inevitable the United States would be dragged into this issue; that it would be unable to please either side; that the net effect would be to convince Americans they could expect nothing but criticism for trying to keep peace in the world.

In September, the United States withheld its vote on the question of putting Cyprus on the U.N. agenda. In December, the United States declares it will vote against the Greek proposal for independence and immediately there are anti-American riots in Athens.

There can be no quarrel about the Greek claim that Cyprus ultimately will be under Greek sovereignty because most of its inhabitants are Greek in origin and interests.

The issue is not what is going to happen ultimately, or what should happen ultimately. The issue is what is going to happen now in the United Nations—and what should happen.

It is not a question of Greece's recovering something that belongs to Greece because in some former time Greece possessed it. Greece never possessed Cyprus.

It is not a question of delivering the Cypriotes from oppression; they are not being manhandled by the British.

It is not even a question of whether or not the British empire should be given another push toward disintegration. Cyprus is not an exploited island. Its inhabitants are not exploited people. Its Greek-speaking inhabitants regarded the annexation of the island by Britain in 1914, following British intervention to curb Turkish oppression in 1878, as an act of deliverance.

It is a question of finding a procedure for giving Cyprus a status that will satisfy most of its inhabitants without overthrowing suddenly or violently its status as a British crown colony and a bastion of defense in the Mediterranean.

It is a test of ability to find such a procedure without being waylaid by bitterness and misunderstanding.

Whose Eminent Domain

The argument between railroads operating in Ohio and the backers of the proposed belt-line conveyor to carry coal and iron ore between Lake Erie and the Ohio River is going to be hot and heavy in this session of the Ohio General Assembly.

Twice the railroads have sidetracked the proposal in the Assembly without trouble, but this year Riverlake Belt Conveyor Lines, Inc. and its allies have taken steps to offset railroad pressure. It behooves Ohioans to understand what the issue is.

It is concerned wholly with eminent domain—whether the belt conveyor people would be given the right once given to railroads to acquire property in the public interest against individual opposition, provided reasonable compensation has been paid.

The people who want to build the belt conveyor must have this right for a special reason—because the conveyor would cross railroad rights-of-way. Since railroads do not want belt conveyor competition, they would refuse permission to cross their property even though it was acquired originally under the right of eminent domain too.

There is no other issue. Everything else that has been dragged into the discussion is unimportant. The conveyor would be economically feasible. It would be feasible as far as engineering is concerned. Its feasibility is so well established that it will be authorized eventually for the same reason the St. Lawrence Seaway was authorized eventually—because the railroads eventually will run out of delaying tactics.

The question is how long that will take.

How long will it take for members of the General Assembly to realize that the right of eminent domain belongs to the sovereign people and is delegated by them at will; that it does not belong to the railroads who were its first beneficiaries?

Religion In and On The Job

A Brighter Outlook

By EUGENE CARR

The New Year starts with many hopeful signs, but most hopeful of all is the ever-growing acceptance of the principle that religion has a definite place in and on the job, as well as in the church and home.

The Old Year ended and the New Year began for many people just about as usual, with customary merrymaking, noisy and boisterous celebrations, and expensive headaches and hangovers. But for countless millions of other Americans, the stroke of midnight on December 31 meant something entirely different.

In the first place, Christmas meant something different to many people this past year. Churches were filled to capacity for special services. Charity organizations found a new and greater generosity among those who came forth to help the needy.

Newspapers, magazines, radio and television published and broadcast more religious features of higher caliber than ever before. The campaign to "Put Christ Back In Christmas" became a rallying point for reviving the true significance of the Saviour's Birthday.

This spirit carried over into the closing hours of 1954 and into the beginning of 1955. Night clubs and funspots were not the only places where the New Year was welcomed. Again, over the long weekend, churches were crowded with men and women looking to the future with faith. Columnists and commentators emphasized hope and confidence as the keynote of the weeks and months to come. Homes everywhere gathered family and friends together to mark the arrival of the New Year with sober reflection and anticipation.

These are signs, good signs, hopeful signs. However, these signs are not on the horizon of the New Year as a result of successful Holiday church services, or charity drives that oversubscribe, or a new brand of wisdom from newsmen and broadcasters, or a sudden desire on the part of people to spend a thoughtful evening at home. Rather they are here because more people than ever believe that religion has an application in everything they do in life, not just something to which they give lip service on Sunday morning and occasionally during the week.

The churches were full not because they held special services but because people wanted to be in church. More people gave more generously of their time and money, not because there was a greater need but because there was a greater desire to give. More reading material and more radio and TV took the religious approach, not because that's what the publishers and broadcasters wanted but because that's what their readers and listeners wanted. And more groups of family and friends preferred to be together in their homes, not because there was no other place to go but because home was the place where they could start the New Year in the way they wanted to start it.

None of these signs would be visible today if the laymen and women of the church were not more deeply rooted in their religious faith than in many a year. And that means something extremely important to our life and living in this country. Once again, the clergy is getting some help from the church layman, not just on Sunday but on weekdays, as well. Laymen everywhere have taken up the challenge to spread the Truths that make life a worthwhile and rewarding experience. They are taking the lessons of religious faith into their everyday occupations, where the clergy does not have the opportunity to go and where the church has not been able to penetrate.

This is the great new hope for 1955 and the years to come. It's religion in and on the job, practiced by ordinary people, working with ordinary people, in their ordinary everyday contacts, one with the other.

The Missouri Valley

By RAYMOND MOLEY

It is difficult for those of us who do not live in the vast Missouri Valley to appreciate the reality of the floor control controversy which involves that area.

On the one hand some of the people in the cities downstream believe that big dams will protect their lives and property from the rushing waters which originate far up among the sources of the Missouri and its tributaries.

There are also those who see in enormous expenditures in selected communities great advantages to business. The highly articulate and energetic promoters of big dams are those who build them, the army engineers.

On the other hand are the farmers in the upper reaches of the rivers, the congressmen and other public servants and the United States Department of Agriculture.

They claim that big dams intensify rather than prevent great floods, that the costs far outweigh their benefits, that they not only inundate and destroy vast areas of valuable farm land in the lower valleys, but take no account of the real problem of soil erosion in the upper valleys, and that big dams are in fact silt traps which in a relatively short time are filled up and make necessary the building of still more dams upstream.

THE CASE for the latter point of view has never been presented in more understandable or more convincing form than in a small but serious book, "Big Dam Foolishness," by Elmer Peterson, an editor in Oklahoma City. His writings on the subject are already well known to readers of national magazines.

Peterson brings to the controversy two priceless values. He is that indispensable person, the intelligent layman who, armed with good common sense and actual knowledge of the physical conditions involved, has the courage to wade into the jargon of engineers and other experts.

He also has the capacity of a good newspaperman to say what he knows plainly and interestingly. The army engineers, against whom Peterson levels a deadly lance, are men who well deserve the praise of all Americans for many fine services. But they also partake of the nature of all bureaucrats, which is to make work and glory for themselves.

Moreover, they seem to enjoy a curious independence in our system of government. I thus always find it difficult to determine exactly who in the federal hierarchy really controls them. Whenever a president in the past has attempted to solve that problem of responsibility, he has been frustrated. Herbert Hoover tried in vain. And so, indeed, did F.D.R.

THE STANDING that the engineers have built up with Congress over the years, the vast patronage involved in projects favored by the engineers, and the skill with which they exercise their public relations render them practically immune to executive control. Moreover, they have in many cases been on the right side of arguments with the grasping and ambitious Reclamation Bureau.

Peterson, however, makes a powerful case for the control of rivers near their source.

What is needed is many small and relatively inexpensive dams, and other forms of keeping the water where it falls. Such methods, well planned by the Soil Conservation Service, would not only minimize floods but prevent the tragic loss of topsoil.

We have already lost a third of the precious topsoil upon which the future food supply of the nation must depend. Every year a cubic mile of such soil passes New Orleans on its way to salt water.

THE ENGINEERS have spent billions, but floods continue. Peterson estimated that the ultimate projects for the Missouri Valley will cost $7 billion dollars more.

When the engineers are confronted with the stark, indisputable fact that the dams they build downstream create lakes, not of water, but of silt, their answer is that more dams must be built.

The year 2053 A.D. will, according to Peterson, see a Missouri Valley composed of a series of silt terraces, void of agriculture, over which a river will wander capriciously for all time to come.

Opposition Disconcerted By Ike's Message

By DAVID LAWRENCE

President Eisenhower's message on the State of the Union covered the waterfront. He urged that something be done about everything but he didn't say when. He is for peace, prosperity, better defense, lower taxes next year, and he even thinks "the arts" and culture should come in for a bit of governmental recognition.

It was perhaps the best political speech ever delivered in the form of an opening address to Congress. It took the wind out of the sails of the left wing Democrats, including those who believe in a welfare state. What could they advocate now? And it was worded with sufficient caution and alternative generalities to keep the conservatives in both parties from being too much alarmed.

Yet it wasn't a middle-of-the-road speech in any sense. Positive recommendations for social-welfare legislation were accompanied by rather definite pronouncements about the need for prudence and economical handling of the nation's finances. After hearing the message, Rep. Walter Judd said that the speech "sounded like Ike (Ike) is a candidate on both tickets." This describes the political overtones of the address, though it doesn't necessarily confirm the bipartisan character of the recommendations.

MANY OF THE proposals will split the Democratic as well as the Republican party, and the final votes will show considerable divergence within both parties. The comments afterward from the Democrats were characteristic. They said about what political opponents always say—"well delivered," "general," or "must wait for details." Nobody on the Democratic side waxed wildly enthusiastic—and the Republicans gave it the praise their party leader is expected to be given on such an occasion. They all saw the political implications of the message.

The President said something on almost every subject except civil rights legislation. His recommendations showed evidence of their having been worked on for a long time. In many respects, the address was far better organized and better phrased than any legislative message President Eisenhower has sent to Congress.

Lots of controversies are imbedded in the general phrases of the address. Even if Congress were disposed to act on the principal topics, there are enough issues in them to keep both houses busy not just for one session but for several sessions.

THE PRESIDENT was well advised when, in somewhat subtle but nevertheless significant fashion, he expressed the hope that partisanship would not be abandoned merely on international policy, as he felt that there should be cooperation wherever the good of the country is involved. This is but another way of warning the Democrats that he hasn't forgotten their campaign pledges to uphold his policies.

The opposition party is somewhat embarrassed by that blanket promise and is trying now to qualify it by saying the President will be supported when he is right and opposed when he is wrong. That's a loophole for partisan attacks and dissent, but Eisenhower nevertheless, by mobilizing public opinion, can put his opponents in a hole if they do finally succumb to the partisan temptation of opposition for opposition's sake.

There were some Democrats who said publicly the speech by the President sounded "New Dealish," and there were Republicans who said the same thing privately. Actually, the Eisenhower address shows the strength of modern political propaganda which seeks to promise the moon, "because, if you don't, the other fellow will."

The appeal to materialism apparently is still the dominant note to be struck—and it didn't start with the New Deal either.

So much of the present-day political combat is waged over phrases and slogans that, when a president comes up with a speech that outdoes the masterpieces of any of the New Deal or Fair Deal ghost writers of the past, it tends to disconcert the "opposition."

TO STRIVE for the support of the maximum number of groups in the electorate is good politics, especially when the time lag between promise and performance is certain to be somewhat lengthy and beset by all sorts of amendments and alternative plans which at a moment's notice can be intercepted by the Democrat's as "in the public interest."

Politically, Eisenhower took the right tack for 1955—if he's thinking about the presidential contest which is less than eighteen months away. But lots of things can happen in that interval, and the Democrats have the advantage of being able to wait till the crucial moments of next year to appraise how much has been accomplished and what has been left undone.

South Pacific Watchers

By ARTHUR SCHOLLES

The Coast Watchers, intrepid lookouts who recorded amazing feats of espionage during World War II, have gone back into operation—but this time securing Australia's northern borders against communism.

Some 600,000 square miles of land and sea are watched by these island planters, storekeepers, missionaries, miners, government officials and just plain settlers. Their "beat" comprises a vast area between Australia and Asia—from the Ninego group in the Admiralty Islands on the west to the British Solomon Islands in the east, and embracing northern New Guinea, New Britain, New Ireland, New Hanover and hundreds of islands in between.

During the past World War, the Coast Watchers' espionage stunts made most cloak-and-dagger exploits sound like scout picnics. Their radio reports from behind Japanese lines saved thousands of Allied servicemen. Their offices won praise and medals from every Allied power.

But at the end of the war, their deeds were quickly forgotten—even though the organization was never disbanded. Today, with the Australians troubled about the threat of communist expansion from Asia, the watchers are back in the security business.

If an enemy ever moved south toward Australia and New Zealand, it would have to reckon with sure detection by these teams of volunteers.

Some of them, equipped with radio transmitters, voluntarily stayed behind in jungle hideouts when the Japanese invaded New Guinea. They warned the United States Marines on Guadalcanal whenever Japanese bombers and fighters took off to attack them.

Their radio reports transmitted to Allied headquarters in the southwest Pacific told of Japanese ship and aircraft movements among all the islands north of Australia. Their flashes enabled Allied planes and ships to be ready for Japanese moves southward.

Some of the Coast Watchers were captured, tortured and executed by the Japanese—in several instances after betrayal by natives afraid of the "Japan Men."

Binding force among the watchers is patriotism—aided by the leadership of a six-foot island "tough guy" who holds the Distinguished Service Cross. Lieut. Comdr. Ron McKaige is officially listed as senior intelligence officer at Tarangau Naval Depot on Manus Island, Australia's most northerly defense post, 120 miles south of the equator.

Actually, McKaige has the job of running the Coast Watchers Corps. Whenever a Japanese pearl-er or fishing boat encroaches on Australian territorial waters, the watchers spot the vessel and McKaige makes the arrest. If a native tribe runs amok, McKaige is sent to the trouble area.

After World War II service at Tobruk, Sicily, among the Grecian Islands, and on the Italian coast, McKaige returned to Australia in 1944 and was chosen to train naval commandoes for the offensives against the Japanese in western New Guinea and Borneo. Later he served as port director at Kuching, Sarawak, straightening out the chaos of the war-shattered harbor.

When the war ended, he went back to an office job in the Queensland railways. Then in 1951, the Australian navy offered him the Manus Island post.

As commanding officer of the Coast Watchers, McKaige has an expansive and half-charted ocean to patrol in a small ship. But his army of volunteers is vigilant.

Outfitted with radios and powerful binoculars, the guards watch every lugger and aircraft moving among the strategic islands to Australia's north. Every one of these movements is messaged to Manus, where the headquarters plots it on a map of the region.

A survey shows that the average modern youth is taller than his father. Maybe it's his fault father is short.

Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Lemme Go, My Eye!

If the new Congress is really worried about the state of the union it will do something about "Let Me Go, Lover." This song is having a curious effect on the people... It has boosted insincerity at least 75 points, brought on an escape complex and enveloped America in a bogus "Unhand me, villain mood... When a husband, suddenly realizing he has been inattentive, kisses his mate for the first time in weeks she is, of course, delighted but cries, "Out of my life, sweetheart!" or "Gangway! You're blocking my exit, dear!" A boy snags his girl friend in a fond embrace which makes her tingle to the heels, but the poor gal has been so influenced by "Let Me Go, Lover" from TV screen and phonograph all winter that she croons, "Lemme get away, please!"

It is one of the best selling records in history and pours into countless homes with every twist of the radio or TV dials, but it should be known as "The Hypocrisy Song"... There is no sincerity in it... We yearn to tune in some night while a gal is sobbing, "Let Me Go, Lover" and see her sweetheart crash into the act with a loud, "Who's stoppin' ya?"

Broadway Capsule Critiques... "Bad Seed": (Arsenic and YOUNG Lacey); "House of Flowers": (Sex and Sympathy); "Lunatics and Lovers": (The Return of Al H. Woods); "The Flowering Peach": (Rain); "Witness for the Prosecution": (The Whodunit Game).

Remember away back when nobody went down to see the boys off to PEACE? General Motors, which already has 88½ million shares of common stock out, plans to issue more to stockholders... Power financing, as it were. With the wrap-around stock certificate. (And the hard-top Sports-model MELON).

Uncle Sam's order barring Soviet citizens from many states, cities, towns and highways sets a new world record for slow motion and delayed backslings. Russian agents have been everywhere and seen just about everything not barred by armed guards... (Our guess is that Malenkov knows more about our cities now than most Americans do)... The one place where they should be barred is the United Nations, and they continue to use it as a Soviet picnic ground and play area... The Washington edict bars them from certain railroad, bus and super-highway travel. We can't dig this... We think they should be compelled to endure the terrible ordeals of bus and other highway travel like the rest of us.

Florida is omitted from the out-of-bounds zone... Uncle Sam thinks that nothing Russia sees in bathing suits, under beach parasols or a $2 mutuels windows will help the enemy... And certainly the pursuit of the electric rabbit by a greyhound is no top secret anywhere... Among the places where Russians are barred we noticed Pottawatomie, Kan.; Deer Lodge, Mont.; Pawnee, Neb. and Minnehaha, S. D.... This is the first time we knew these spots had anything Malenkov wanted... Androscoggin, Me., is also closed to the Soviets, indicating they will have to get their potatoes from grocery stores along the East River. Connecticut is completely out of bounds, with the exception of New Haven, for some reason. Our guess is that Washington knows the only sure way to make certain that Soviet citizens get lost is to let them face traffic problem in that city.

Boxing circles all over the land will watch Julius Helfand, the all-out exposé of racketeers, named as head of the New York State Boxing Commission... Julius gave no quarter in his colorful war on racketeers and their curious tie-ups with powerful figures when he was a district attorney, and fans are betting that in his fight with boxing's baddies he won't go to a neutral corner after the knockdown and wait until he gets a signal to come out.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

I have found it easier to pierce the Soviet's Iron Curtain than the Pentagon's Brass Curtain.

Were I seeking military secrets

I would be delighted by the imprisonable silence of the arm-chair army of brush-off specialists. But I have been seeking answers to questions on mysterious changes in Army regulations affecting labor; questions on the failure to act on the disappearance from Air Force Intelligence of an FBI file on an important labor executive; questions on what happened to military amen linked with at least one Soviet spy.

Were I alone in efforts to obtain this and other information from the military hush-hush crowd, I would mark it down to the fact that you can vote me the least likely to win a popularity contest in that busy castle.

But recently the Secret Service, the Department of Justice, the FBI and even certain White House staffers have been unable to get straight answers—or any answers—on certain subjects out of the Pentagon.

The Pentagon need answer to the one but the President of the U.S.—for it is actually a law unto itself.

IT NEED ANSWER no civilian

no newsmen, no law officer, no federal enforcement agent or agency. It has the power to defy almost all civilian authority—except for President Eisenhower—on any matter it chooses. Its brass appears before Congress and testifies only out of fear of appropriation cuts.

It can even throw a curtain over the worst crimes or the sleaziest corruption that may develop and refuse the Department of Justice any information, as it has recently.

The Pentagon power was reaffirmed in Public Law 725, passed last year. When it was being discussed, a Pentagon lobbyist appeared and insisted that Congress add the following words to the act:

"(The Public Law 725) will not limit in any way the existing authority of the military departments to investigate persons or offenses over which the armed forces has jurisdiction under the Uniform Code of Military Justice."

This excluded the Secret Service, the Department of Justice from any jurisdiction over anything that happens in the armed forces. It also adds up to the fact that the Pentagon, in handling any crime or situation, need not hold public trials with all the concomitant

IT'S A LOVE TRIANGLE between three Academy Award winners, Audrey Hepburn, Humphrey Bogart and William Holden, in Paramount's new comedy "Sabrina," which is due to open Sunday at the State Theater. A charming Cinderella tale, the film concerns the chase by two immensely wealthy brothers for the hand of their chauffeur's daughter.

7 Persons Killed In Head-On Crash

LORDSBURG, N.M. (AP)—Seven lives—those of five adults and two children—were snuffed out Friday in a smashing head-on collision 21 miles east of here.

State Policeman Neil Moore said the accident occurred yesterday when a speeding automobile with five persons in it crashed into another auto bearing a Minnesota couple.

Moore said the car driven by Ralph Osborn Mitchell, 22, Adena, Ohio, soldier stationed at Ft. Bliss, Tex., was three feet across the center line at the time of impact.

Killed were Mitchell, Sgt. and Mrs. Richard Lavern Hersh, both 25, of Silver Spring, Md., their two small unidentified daughters, Elwood H. Vincent, 66, Fairmont, Minn., and Mrs. Vincent, 59.

But Van Fossan had the file copied last year. There was no real punishment and no effort in all these weeks by the Air Force to retrieve this document.

Who is responsible for this insouciance, which may still hurt one of the most important fighters against world communism? You try to get an answer. The Department of Justice couldn't.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell tried to work things out with Secty. of Defense Charles Wilson, who understandably turned for advice to the Pentagon's general counsel, ex-Michigan Gov. Bruecker. Wilson might have gone along with Brownell on the theory of civilian control over the military in certain criminal cases, but Bruecker vetoed it.

THE BRASS CURTAIN hangs over other vital matters. For example, Pentagon labor policy is set in a series of Army Regulations. One of these is Army Regulation 600-195. It said, in effect, that soldiers, sailors and airmen, when off-duty, could work in civilian plants, but not under less favorable conditions than civilians and not during labor disputes.

Suddenly, this regulation was changed. No one outside the Pentagon knows by whom. No one in the White House or the Department of Labor was consulted. No one can discover who set new policy, which contradicts White House policy, incidentally.

Somebody in the Pentagon simply decided to change the regulation without consulting a n y civilian force—although labor and industry are affected.

Who runs who in this land?

Women's Guild Announces '55 Group Projects

Emphasizing four main sources of a Christian vocation, Mrs. Annie Shive was topic leader when the Women's Guild of St. Jacob's Church met Thursday in the Guy L. Frantz home on Lincoln Way in Lisbon.

Four sources, she said, are individuals and God through prayer; local churches as a place to serve; beyond local churches into world service; and consecration in fulfilling the Christian vocation.

Mending for the Central Clinic Hospital and sewing quilt patches provided the morning's activities. Mrs. Kenneth Clapsadle rendered a prayer and rollcall was a scripture verse.

Hostesses for the noon coverdinner were Mrs. Frantz and Mrs. Clapsadle.

Officers installed by Rev. E. D. Fager were: Mrs. Clapsadle, president; Mrs. Homer McPherson, vice president; Mrs. Carl Bailey, secretary; ad Mrs. Frantz, treasurer.

Departmental reports and secretary and treasury reports were reviewed during the business session.

Mrs. Fager reported on the future merger of St. Jacob's Evangelical and Reformed Church with the Congregational Church to be completed about 1957.

"Our Time As A Christian Steward" will be the year's theme of Mrs. Howard Wilhelm, chairman, of the stewardship department.

A review of prospective books on the reading list was presented by Mrs. Tom Jones, Christian education chairman.

The year's projects will be collections of old greeting cards, farm magazines, used clothing and used neckties, Mrs. Dean Price, chair-

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walthman man of Christian Service, announced.

Mrs. Orrie Taylor, Christian social action chairman, announced projects of making pillowslips for veterans hospitals and collecting envelopes and dated postmarks for veterans.

Mrs. Howard Chamberlain and Mrs. South Metzger will serve as co-chairmen in January. Officers elected for the year are Mrs. C. E. Phillips, secretary; and Mrs. Chamberlain, treasurer.

"Girl Scouts — a Growing Force for Freedom," was the theme of the conference.

The Salem Senior Scouts in attendance were complimented for their behavior, poise and dress. These scouts will give a report at the Jan. 13 Council meeting in the Memorial Building.

Officials Face Budget Deficit

Auditor Vorndran Says 3-Mill Levy Necessary

LEETONIA — Village officials are faced with a $1,000 deficit in the year's village budget.

Mayor Paul Sevenich and Clerk John McCue met at Lisbon Dec. 24 to discuss the annual budget when County Auditor Irvin Vorndran explained that the deficit was brought about by reduction in valuation at the Crescent Machine Company and removal of two center tracks on the Pennsylvania railroad right of way.

It was explained that a three mill levy on the November ballot for 1956 and the years following is necessary unless total valuation can be boosted through new building and industry. For the remainder of this year, Council will have to adjust all expenditures to meet current income.

Fire Chief Eldon Holt presented his annual report to Council.

Band Mothers Club will meet Monday at 7:45 in the high school. Junior High brass ensemble will present a number of selections during the program.

Brilliant Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will meet at the parsonage on Columbiana St. Monday evening with Mrs. T. P. Laughner as hostess and Mrs. Joseph Woodward as leader of the topic, "The Modern Missionary."

Representative group of downtown businesses attended Wednesday night's Village Council session to file objections to the proposed installation of parking meters in the business area. Businessmen suggested that council or the Leetonia Chamber of Commerce buy or lease ground suitable for parking purposes and that free parking is more important than paid space.

It was pointed out to the group that many of the parking spaces are utilized by the businessmen themselves. No action was taken.

On a motion by Frank Citino and second by Joe Weikart the police department was instructed to enforce the regulation regarding the unloading of trucks on the south side of Main St., from Chestnut to Walnut. An exception will be at the courtesy parking spot granted to Vallone's Market.

Mayor Sevenich ordered the pin ball machine ordinance enforced at once. Those operating such machines without license will be subject to fines.

Glenn Harding of Salem of the Ohio Edison Company was requested by Light Committee Chairman Oren Deffenbaugh to give a report on costs and advantages of a new type street light for the business area.

Solicitor William Lodge was requested to file stream pollution permit with the state. Present permit expires on Jan. 17.

Brownie Troop will be held in the Methodist parish house at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday. Girls aged 7 are eligible to join and are urged to attend the February meeting.

6 Killed, 2 Hurt In 2-Car Collision

FINCASTLE, Va. (AP)—Two autos collided near this southwest Virginia town late last night, killing six persons and injuring two others.

State police tentatively identified the dead as:

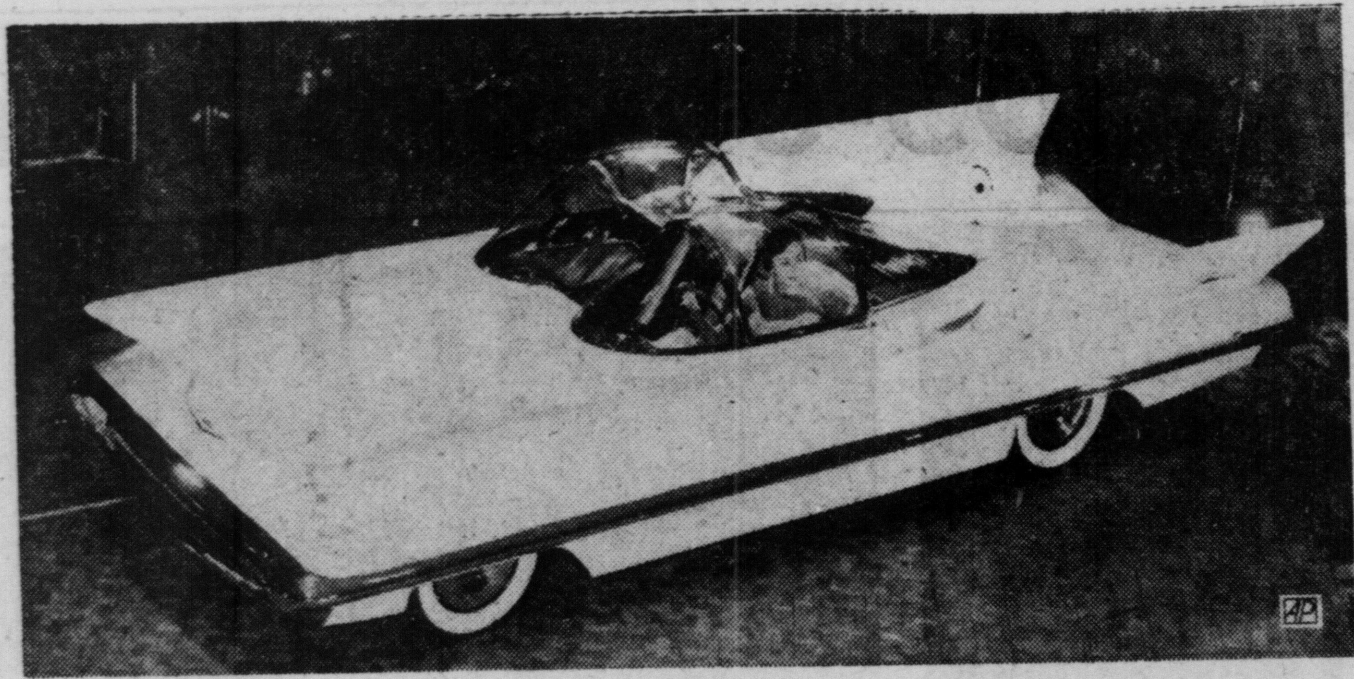

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wills, each about 55, and Wilmer Rea Wills, 39, all of Fincastle.

George Vincent Brown, 21, of Fincastle and William Henry Clay Jr., about 20, and Gilbert Wiley, 21, both of nearby Troutville.

Two unidentified young men were taken to a hospital in Roanoke, 10 miles south of here. Their condition was reported serious early today.

State police said the autos met at the foot of a hill on U.S. Route 20 about two miles southeast of Fincastle. One car turned upside down and came to rest atop the other vehicle, officers said.

JAIL CONDITIONS RAPED
SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Conditions at county jail here were termed "a severe threat" to prisoners' health following a tour of the jail yesterday by Clark County grand jurors. They recommended offering a $495,000 bond issue to voters to provide a new jail. A similar proposal failed to win approval in last November's election.

DREAM CAR OF THE 'FUTURA'—The Lincoln "Futura," a dream car built in Italy, is displayed in its world premier in Chicago prior to the Chicago auto show. The "Futura" is almost 19 feet long and seven feet wide, and only 52.8 inches high. It has twin plexiglas domes over its two bucket-type seats. Marie Blasko models behind the wheel. Car will be used by engineers to test possible future mechanical styling innovations.

Columbiana Residents Petition Against School Consolidation

COLUMBIANA — Remonstrance petitions against consolidation of Fairfield and New Waterford school districts were authorized this week by the Columbiana County school authorities. Petitions are to be circulated for presentation to the county board by Saturday, Jan. 29, deadline for protests. Signatures of 50 per cent of the qualified voters who voted at the last election will prevent consolidation.

If consolidation stands, a proposal for a bond issue to build a high school for the new district will be placed on the ballot for primary election May 3, it has been announced.

Ex-Child Prodigy Sent To Reformatory

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—An Akron musician, once a child prodigy, was sentenced to the Ohio Reformatory today as a parole violator on drug convictions.

"This was the hardest duty I've ever had to perform in my 25 years on the bench," said Common Pleas Judge Cland V. D. Emmons as he penalized 24-year-old Patsy Pace.

At the age of five, Pace could play several musical instruments, including the piano. Over the years he has given concerts and played at night clubs throughout the nation. But police see his record as a long string of narcotics offenses, beginning several years ago.

Last summer Judge Emmons put him on probation, sparing him concurrent sentences of 1-15 years on a charge of breaking and entering to obtain drugs and 1-5 years on a charge of forging prescriptions.

Recently Pace was arrested twice in Akron, once in Cleveland and once in Wadsworth, Ohio, on narcotics charges. So the judge put the sentences into effect.

North Benton Church Sets Installations

The congregation of the North Benton Presbyterian Church held its annual congregational meeting Wednesday following a coverdinner arranged by wives of the trustees.

Presiding at the dinner and the meeting, which attracted a larger attendance than those in recent years, was the pastor, Rev. Donald McGarrah. Harold Phillips served as clerk, and Mrs. Ruth Ailes was pianist for the devotional.

Roland Hartzell and W. Burton Shively were elected elders for three year terms, and Ed Stratton was re-elected trustee for five years. It was voted to enlarge the trustee board from five to seven members. George Bullis and Perry Cullison were elected trustees for one year with eligibility thereafter for re-election for a regular five year term.

The newly elected elders and trustees will be installed at the 9 a.m. service Sunday. Mr. Shively will be ordained an elder at that time.

John Hammond was re-elected church treasurer for one year and Harold Paulin was re-elected financial secretary for one year. The church reported a net gain of 21 members, bringing the membership to 250, a net increase of 78 members in the last three years.

The church treasurer reported splendid progress in raising the $20,000 educational unit cost. The congregation voted to continue this fund until all work involved is completed and the loans repaid. The completed work will include grading of the back lot, construction of a driveway around the back of the church and sanctuary rostrum improvement.

The next project the trustees have in mind is the redecoration of the sanctuary. They are making plans now for the repairing and re-leading of the sanctuary stained glass windows.

A foundation spokesman told a reporter there should be a statement after the board meeting. Foundation subcommittees yesterday discussed the proposals and made suggestions to the board.

Among other matters, the trustees will consider creation of a physical memorial in Washington, an institute to "promulgate his ideals" and a program of scholarships, grants and research activities.

Salem Swamps New Philadelphia 103-65 For 6th Win In Row

Quakers Face Ravenna Tonight

Alexander Dumps In 23, Leads Scoring

By LOWELL FLEISCHER

Again hitting the hoops with uncanny accuracy, Coach John Cabas' Salem Quakers tallied over 20 points in each quarter to crush the New Philadelphia Quakers 103-65 before a full house last night in the Salem High School gym.

It was the second time this season that the locals passed over the century mark in the scoring department. The Quakers opened the season with a brilliant 105-58 win over Youngstown Ursuline, which set a new school scoring record.

After the midway point in the second period there was no doubt but that the Cabasmen would register their sixth straight victory of the year without a loss. It was the fourth loss against three wins for Coach Leo Benjamin's New Philly cagers.

Pouring in 38 of 74 shots from the field, the Salem aggregation hit 51.5 per cent of their attempted shots. New Philadelphia made 26 of 88 attempted shots for a 29.5 per cent average.

JUNIOR RICH HUNTER scored the 98th Salem point with about one minute left in the contest. Hunter was then fouled by Bob Wenger and after missing his first shot tallied the 99th marker. A few seconds later Hunter was again fouled, this time by Jim Rolli, and tossed in the 100 and the 101st Salem points. Before the final buzzer sounded Matt Klein made good with the Quakers' 38th field goal of the evening and 103rd point.

Jack Alexander led the Salem scoring parade with 23 points on six field goals and 11 free throws. Fifteen of Alexander's 23 points came in the second quarter when the Quakers tallied a total of 32 points.

Quaker Captain Harry Baird got 20 points, Rich Hunter 18 and Kenny Bosu 17 for Salem. This well balanced scoring attack has been one of the main factors in Salem's early season success along with the team's phenomenal shooting.

The Quakers played the entire fourth quarter using Hunter, Alexander and three subs, Johnny Stephenson, Jim Kelly and Matt Klein. Ted Jackson also broke into the tilt.

These six will probably be the core for next season's Varsity. All of them are juniors with the exception of Stephenson and Jackson who are sophomores.

Hunter did the bulk of the fourth quarter scoring, getting 10 points.

NEW PHILADELPHIA scored first in the game and then the Quakers knotted the score as Hunter tallied. They went ahead on another Hunter basket, never to fall behind again in the tilt. The Quakers from New Philadelphia stayed with the Cabasmen during most of the first period and the early part of the second but then fell by the wayside.

The locals held a 56-28 edge at halftime and were out in front by 39 points, 81-42 going into the final stanza.

Salem's 103 point total raised their average to 88.3 points per game while their opponents in five contests are averaging exactly 52 markers per game.

The Quakers have scored a total of 533 points while holding their opposition to 312 points.

Shouts of "we want a hundred" started coming from the SHS student body shortly after the start of the fourth quarter.

PLAYING EXCELLENT ball all night, the Quakers once again proved that they are one of the top aggregations in northeastern Ohio.

With his 23 points Junior Jack Alexander took over the scoring leadership of the Salem team with 94 points. Directly behind Alexander are Harry Baird with 91 and Ken Bosu with 89. Rich Hunter is also near the top with 83 markers in the first six games.

Many of Salem's fans last night were wearing huge "Love Those Quakers" buttons being sold by the Salem High School letter-winners organization, the Varsity S Club. Varsity S Club prexy Bill Lipp said earlier this week that the Club was asking all the downtown merchants and Salem fans to wear the large red buttons on the days of Salem's games. Club sponsor, Quaker Coach John Cabas, said that the buttons were a symbol of loyalty to the Quakers.

Money the Club realized from the sale of the buttons will be used

North, South Seniors Meet In Bowl Today

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Selected North and South squads met in the sixth annual senior bowl football game at Ladd Stadium today. The kickoff was set for 1:45 p.m. CST.

The South team, coached for the sixth time by longtime pro coach Steve Owen, was favored by a slim, one touchdown margin over Coach Paul Brown's north squad.

to purchase trophies for the Mickey McGuire basketball champions and to add new sport books to the Salem High School library.

CABAS, VERY HAPPY over the win over New Philadelphia, cautioned his squad about a battle with the Ravenna Ravens tonight. The Ravens squad has a 5-5 win-loss record for the year.

Last night while the Quakers were drubbing New Philly, the Ravens took a 86-57 loss from a tough Kent Roosevelt squad.

The Ravens will have a considerable height advantage when they meet the Quakers on the Salem floor tonight. The Reserves of the two schools clash at 7:30 with the Varsity scheduled for 9 p.m.

At center for Ravenna will be 6-foot, 4-inch Ron Cox while Bob Baker and Max Cole, two 6-1 seniors will start at the forward positions. Despite their height the Ravens are reported to be weak in the rebound department. Both Myers and Alexander have been doing good jobs on the boards for Salem.

After tonight's game with Ravenna, in which the locals rank as the favorites, the Quakers go to Warren next Friday with the Youngstown Rayen quintet invading Salem next Saturday night.

Coach Jack Mills' Lisbon Blue Devils won their first Tri-County game of the season last night as they defeated the Minerva round-ballers 64-44.

It was the fifth win of the year against three losses for the Blue Devils. They now have a 1-1 record in the Tri-County league. Sebring's powerful Trojans swamped the Blue Devils 71-45 last Tuesday.

Jerry Rose and Chick Ashton paced the Lisbon scoring with 19 and 18 points respectively. Bob Early tallied nine markers for the Blue Devils.

Lisbon went out in front 15-9 in the first quarter and led the rest of the contest.

Tuesday the Lisbonites travel to North Lima for a non-league game.

Feller Studies 17th Contract With Indians

CLEVELAND (AP)—Pitcher Bob Feller, pondering over contracting for his 17th season with the Cleveland Indians, said today he "doesn't feel a day older than 10 years ago."

But, he added jokingly: "I don't expect to be paid as much as 10 years ago." Feller, 36 last Nov. 3, says he doesn't "see why I can't win a few games next year, the way things stack up" and he thinks he may be good for "two or three more years."

As in the past, the figures on Feller's contract were secret. It's a safe guess they add up to around half of what he earned when he was a fire-balling first in the baseball's top pay bracket. It has been estimated, never confirmed, that Feller's peak salary with the tribe was $80,000.

NEW YORK—Floyd Patterson, 166, New York, stopped Willie Troy, 162, Washington, 5.
Philadelphia—Charley Cummings, 136, Philadelphia, outpointed Irish Jimmy Armstrong, 133, Philadelphia, 8.

Wally Smith, Gonsalves To Battle Tonight

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A slugger will be pitted against a boxer when Wallace Smith of Cincinnati and Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland, Calif., meet tonight in the 10-round feature fight in the City Auditorium.

Smith, the heavy hitter, is a 7-5 favorite, in spite of the fact that Gonsalves invaded his home town and outpointed him last May. That was the only defeat by a lightweight on Smith's record during the past year.

Kentucky, Duquesne See Action Tonight

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

After watching various pretend-ers to its throne batter each other the past week, the University of Kentucky steps on the basketball court tonight after seven days of leisure.

Adolph Rupp's Wildcats, unbeaten all last season and showing a 7-0 record for the present campaign, headline a full schedule in which every conference in the country sends most of its teams into action.

Kentucky entertains Georgia Tech at Lexington in a Southeastern Conference game. Duquesne, currently the top independent and No. 2 to Kentucky in this week's Associated Press poll figures to roll on to its ninth victory of the season when it takes on little St. Francis of Loretto, Pa.

On the Pacific Coast, where most of the action centered last night, Southern California, seeking its second straight league championship plays California for the second night in a row. Last night, the Trojans won 63-56. Oregon State, the Northern Division winner last year, whipped Washington State, 70-58, and has another date with the same outfit tonight.

In other PCC games last night, Washington turned back Idaho, 82-35, and Stanford overcame UCLA 61-56.

New York University and Notre Dame, which not long ago attracted packed galleries in New York Madison Square Garden have their annual date in the big arena, but it won't be like the old days. NYU no longer is a power and the Irish show a mediocre 5-4 record.

The Big Ten will show a nationally televised game when Wisconsin meets Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich. Indiana, still hoping to pull itself to a third straight title, goes against Illinois, while Ohio State sends Robin Freeman, the nation's leading scorer with 34.6 points per game, against Michigan.

In the Ivy League all eyes are on Dartmouth, a club which probably has surprised itself by going undefeated in eight games. Coach Al Julian will use four sophomores against Cornell, unbeaten in three league games. Penn, the league favorite, plays Princeton.

Missouri, the heir apparent to the Big Seven throne, is host to Nebraska in the top game, while in the Atlantic Coast Conference, surprising Maryland, battles Clemson. In the Southwest Conference, Arkansas at Texas A and M. Rice at Southern Methodist and Texas at Baylor (favorite Texas Christian is idle). And in the Missouri Valley, veteran-laden Wichita plays Houston while Detroit battles Oklahoma A&M.

In other major games last night: Georgia clubbed Mississippi State 90-75, Florida State whipped Florida Southern 73-69, South Carolina ran up a 112-63 victory over Newberry, Hofstra routed Gettysburg 79-64, Washington of St. Louis topped Missouri Mines 86-63, Ohio University outscored Western Michigan 97-84, Middlebury edged Hamilton 57-54, Buffalo University upset Colgate 83-70 and St. John's of Brooklyn turned back St. Francis of Brooklyn 80-71.

SHOOTING STARS—Both Frank Brian, left, and Ed Macauley rank with the top scorers in the National Basketball Association. Brian is a fine outside shooter for the Ft. Wayne Zollners and Macauley is the 6-8 pivot man for the Boston Celtics.

Hayes Denies NCAA Rebuke

Termed Big 10 Better Than Pacific Coast

CHICAGO (AP)—Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes, who said four other Big Ten teams besides Ohio State were better than Southern California, has denied the NCAA reprimanded him for his comments after the Rose Bowl game.

Hayes' Buckeyes defeated Southern Cal 20-7 in the annual classic New Year's Day.

Hayes appeared yesterday at a meeting of the Executives' Club of Chicago where he narrated Rose Bowl movies.

"A report I was reprimanded by the NCAA is not true," Hayes said. "If so, they haven't got in touch with me yet."

The rumor apparently stemmed from a statement made by Bill Murray of Duke, chairman of the American Football Coaches' Assn., at the annual NCAA convention in New York Thursday.

Murray reminded coaches of their responsibility to avoid derogatory post-game statements.

Hayes said his comments were "honest opinions" given in answer to interviews.

He rated Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota better than Southern California.

Patterson TKOs Troy In Fifth

NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody faults Floyd Patterson except the ring record book which shows 19 gaudy victories in 20 pro starts after Friday night's fifth round technical knockout over Willie Troy.

"He missed too much," said Troy, sixth-ranked middleweight contender from Washington, D.C. as he sat in his dressing room with a tightly closed left eye and an "egg" over the right lamp.

"He couldn't knock out a middleweight," said a fight manager. But that was strictly a technicality for the ex-Olympic champ battered Troy with his quick, violent hands so that even Al Weill, the loser's manager, asked them to stop it.

It was strictly no contest at Madison Square Garden where two officials, referee Al Berl and judge Artie Aldala had a 5-0 shutout until it was stopped. So did the A.P. Judge Harold Barnes gave the first round to Troy, the only close round of the fight, and had it 4-1 at the end of five.

Salem Freshmen Win Second Of Season

The Salem High School freshman basketball squad registered its second win of the season yesterday afternoon in the Salem gym defeating the East Liverpool East and Junior High 55-47.

Coach Ernest Sherman's cagers went out in front during the second quarter after both teams tallied 10 points in the first period. Salem continued to pad their lead in the third quarter but were outscored in the fourth period 17-11.

Moe Mesimer was high point man for the "Little Quakers" with 13 markers, Darrell Adams had 10 and Lani Waiwaile and Hayes Covert each eight for the Quakers.

NCAA To Pick TV Committee

To Seek Compromise On Grid Broadcasts

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—A new television committee will be chosen by the NCAA today and entrusted with the delicate task of mapping out a football video program that will please some factions and appease others.

The committee, to be selected by the college group's freshly appointed council, was given a "blank check" by the convention yesterday to settle one of the NCAA's "thorniest problems," as Father Edmund P. Joyce of Notre Dame put it.

In the next couple of months the committee will have to devise a program that will be satisfactory to the numerically powerful Eastern groups, which want some kind of a national "game of the week" schedule again, and the influential threatening Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference alliance, which desire a combination of a regional and national program.

There was every indication as the convention adjourned yesterday that a compromise might be effected. When the committee has completed its deliberations, it will send out its program for a mail vote by the members. A two-third vote is required for passage.

"The Big Ten probably will do nothing until a new plan comes down," said Michigan's H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, leading spokesman for the Western Conference on the floor of the convention. It was the tall, gray-haired former coach who stirred up a tempest Thursday when he said the Big Ten might strike out on its own if a more liberal TV program was not forthcoming.

The Big Ten-Pacific Coast combine and its supporters didn't enjoy the parliamentary hassle on the floor yesterday which wound up in a standing vote by the members on which of the listed TV plans they preferred.

By a whopping 4 to 1 margin the delegates expressed a preference for some kind of a national "game of the week" program over the Big Ten sponsored national-regional, (four national programs) proposal.

Reserves Win Sixth Straight

Jackson Paces 61-52 New Philadelphia Tilt

Coach Karl Zellers' Quaker Reserve squad kept alive their string of six straight victories last night as they downed the New Philadelphia Jayvees 61-52.

Ted Jackson, looking much improved over several previous games, paced the Salem scoring with 17 points followed by Matt Klein's 13 markers and Johnny Stephenson's 10 points.

The Salem Jayvees took a 14-6 first quarter lead and were out in front 25-14 at intermission. Outscored 19-16 in the third period, the locals went into the last quarter with an eight point lead.

Bill Cooper was high point man for the New Philly Reserves with 14 points followed by Steve Phillips with 13 markers.

Zellers used a total of 14 men in the contest. It was the 24th straight win for Salem Reserve team. The Jayvees went undefeated in 17 games last year and won the last game of the 1952-53 season.

City Celebrates Retaining Plant

Follansbee To Have Steel Firm 3 Years

FOLLANSBEE, W. Va. (AP) — The steelworkers of Follansbee and the townspeople who depend on their jobs settled down today to the prospect of at least three more years of regular pay days.

Not long ago it looked as if pay days at the Follansbee Steel Corp. plant, the economic heart of this community of 4,500, would soon end forever. The plant was to be sold and most of its equipment moved to Georgia.

But the townspeople—and 47 minority stockholders of the company—won a long hard fight to keep the plant where it is for at least three years.

Yesterday they threw a rip-roaring, all-day party to celebrate the victory.

The steel plant employed 740 persons and paid by far the biggest share of tax money required to keep the community alive. Residents argued that without it, Follansbee would be a ghost town. Their argument was heard by 47 minority stockholders who successfully blocked the proposed sale.

Frederick W. Richmond, a New York financier who owned a controlling interest in the plant, originally planned to dispose of it to Republic Steel Corp. Republic wanted to move the equipment to its Gadsden, Ala., operation.

The delaying legal action by the minority stockholders brought a Federal Court opinion and switched the sale to a group headed by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus S. Eaton. The terms include a promise to operate the plant here for at least three years.

Eaton was given a standing ovation for more than five minutes at the victory banquet attended by 1,200 last night.

"I believe in the people of Follansbee," he told them. "I believe there is a real field for this mill if the company sticks to specialties which bring much higher prices."

yond saying "the chronology speaks for itself."

Gen. Weible was not immediately available.

The chronology was released after a copy was furnished to Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass.), who had asked Secretary of the Army Stevens for it. Stevens said the full details were being made public because confidential handling of an earlier list of 30 names "has been misinterpreted in some places."

McCarthy said he would demand the subpoena, possibly for appearance on Tuesday, of Stevens, Adams, Weible and Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker. The latter, who was commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., where Peress was stationed, was questioned sharply by McCarthy at hearings early last year.

Sheppard

morning that Shepard's mother put a snub-nose revolver to her right ear and ended her life in a locked bedroom at the home of her other son, Dr. Stephen Sheppard, new legal maneuvers were started by Atty William J. Corrigan.

Corrigan did this yesterday: (1) Filed notice of intention to appeal to a higher court the conviction that ended the 10-week trial. Because of the heavy docket and the two-million-word record of the trial, the three-judge Appellate Court here is unlikely to rule on the appeal for at least six months.

(2) Asked the Appellate Court to continue a stay of execution of sentence and to release Sheppard on bail, pending a decision on the appeal. These requests will be heard Jan. 17. The state contends Sheppard is not bailable under a 1953 Ohio law which will be meeting its first challenge.

(3) Withdrew "without prejudice" a motion for a new trial on the basis of "newly discovered evidence." Corrigan gave no reason for asking dismissal of the motion and would not discuss it. He still has 100 days left to reintroduce it, however.

Under his second-degree murder conviction, Sheppard is eligible for parole 10 years after he is transferred to Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus.

Deming

"year of digestion." A few lines will be discontinued and several others will be redesigned to improve pump efficiency and result in more competitive prices. These changes will be minor in nature but the overall effect will produce a more compact line of pumps that offers increased opportunities for larger production and better sales.

The past year also saw the opening of a plant in Monterey, Mexico — Deming de Mexico, S. A. as well as warehouses at Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn. The new plant will help Deming maintain high sales levels which were being threatened by high tariffs which made it impractical to ship pumps from Salem to Mexico, it was explained. Industrial and agricultural expansion in the northern and central sections of Mexico have produced a ready market for the vertical turbine pumps which Deming will produce.

Most of the parts will be manufactured in Mexico. Some parts, however, will be shipped from Salem. The plant is operating under the direction of Peter Ferguson who is also setting up additional sales outlets.

Deming catalogs and price sheets are being translated into Spanish, and a publicity program for Mexico and other Latin American countries is in progress.

Walter Everett, export manager, predicted that export sales on this side of the Iron Curtain would remain good, but as in the case of Mexico, tariffs on products entering European countries are high. Despite these disadvantages The Deming Company has been able to maintain competitive prices in foreign markets.

In summing up the week's activities, Harry E. Carlross, vice president, told the group, "We have every reason to expect another good year. Overall efficiency has improved and our line of pumps is better than ever. The challenge this year is to the salesman. I'm confident that we can increase our sales in 1955."

Hammarskjold Chou Meet For 5 Hours

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio reported Dag Hammarskjold and Premier Chou En-lai met for more than five hours this evening regarding the 11 U. S. airmen imprisoned by Red China as "spies."

It was the longest closed-door session of the three held thus far. The broadcast gave no details aside from those attending the session but said another meeting would be held Monday.

Today's meeting between the secretary general and the Chinese Communist leader began at 3 p.m. and continued until 8:10 p.m.

The Red Radio's previous broadcasts, monitored here and in San Francisco, have given no hint of progress in the more than seven hours of closed-door conferences between the U.N. secretary-general and Chou.

Neither has there been any hint of a possible statement. Notably absent from the broadcasts since Hammarskjold's arrival three days ago have been the usual old charges of U.S. "espionage."

Hammarskjold man the dramatic flight to Peiping to seek to arrange the release of the 11 airmen, shot down in the Korean War, and other U.N. personnel.

Hammarskjold and Chou talked 31-3 hours Thursday.

The envoy has been sending communications to U.N. headquarters in New York but these have been as bare of news as the terse Peiping reports.

However, from Hong Kong came an indication Hammarskjold apparently expects some kind of decision soon. British Overseas Airways said he and his party expect to leave Peiping late this week and arrive in Hong Kong Monday.
